Army Estimates: £548,000 for Militia Pay and Allowances
The Chairman said that on the first point the hon. Member was out of order. As to the second point he found himself in some difficulty, and had waited to see how far the hon. Member would proceed with the subject. Undoubtedly a sum of money was asked for in relation to the Guernsey Militia, but it was a very limited sum for a specific and minor object, and he hoped the hon. Member would bear the fact in mind. June 19 [41] 1504

(Rulings as Chairman of Committee)

Agricultural Land Rating Bill
The Chairman said, the hon. Member would be in order in making such a speech on the Second Reading, but he did not think he was in order in making it on that Amendment May 19 [40] 1736
The Chairman said, there was an Amendment later down on the Paper which raised that specific point, and he could not allow it to be anticipated May 21 [41] 115
The Chairman said, that the next Amendment, standing in the name of Mr. Pickersgill, to insert in line 26, after “prescribed,” the words “by one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State” was out of order May 21, 190
The Chairman said, if so the Amendment would be in order May 21, 190
The Chairman said, the hon. Member must confine himself more strictly to the subject of the Amendment under discussion May 21, 192

Education Bill
The Chairman said, the hon. Member was not in order in going back to the first Amendment. It would be convenient if the hon. Member for Islington would withdraw his Amendment and propose it again in the form in which he desired it to be put. That would make the hon. Member's remarks in order June 11 [41] 911
The Chairman said, it was quite true that the Amendment could not be withdrawn unless with unanimous consent, but he understood the hon. Member was speaking to the original Amendment June 11, 912

The Chairman said, the question was the Amendment of the hon. Member for Islington—that was after “council” insert “and municipal borough” June 11, 913

Expiring Laws Continuance Bill
The Chairman thought that this question had better be raised on the Schedule Aug 8 [44] 260

Finance Bill
The Chairman called the hon. Member to order. He was not speaking to the Amendment before the House, which was to substitute the term of forty years for thirty years July 9 [42] 1160

Light Railways (Advances)
The Chairman said, that the Resolution before the House dealt with the allocation of money under any Act of Parliament passed during this Session dealing with Light Railways. It would not be in order to discuss the details of any particular Bill upon the subject Mar 13 [38] 960

(Rulings as Chairman of Committees)

Agricultural Land Rating Bill

The Chairman said, the hon. Member referred to "the" Inquiry in the Amendment—an Inquiry of which the House had no cognisance. It did not refer to what Inquiry it was—whether it was an Inquiry by a Select Committee or by a Royal Commission, or what kind of Inquiry. Nor did he say who was to judge as to which alternative was to be accepted. The Amendment, even with the addition which the hon. Member proposed, would be no true alternative to what the House had accepted, and it was altogether too vague. The Amendment of the hon. Member for Shoreditch was disposed of by the decision of the House last night; and the Amendments of the hon. Members for North London and Hoxton were put down in the wrong place. The first Amendment in order was that standing in the name of the hon. Member for Merthyr Tydvil May 14 [40] 1344

The Chairman said, that an Amendment of the hon. Member for Tyneside (Mr. J. A. Pease), to insert the year 1898, fell to the ground; the Amendment of the hon. Member for South Somerset (Mr. Strachey), to insert "the occupier of any land, buildings, or other hereditaments," was outside the scope of the Bill; and two Amendments by the hon. Members for North Monmouth and Hoxton embodied the same principle, but proposed to apply it in different ways. He should, therefore, put the first words of the Amendment of the hon. Member for North Monmouth, and if they were adopted the Amendment of the hon. Member for Hoxton could be moved May 14, 1353

The Chairman said, in his opinion the right hon. Gentleman did not move the closure twice. He moved it on the first occasion, in the proper form, and he then declined to accept the Motion. Subsequently, the right hon. Gentleman exhibited indications of a desire to renew that Motion; and, as he supposed, he gathered from his appearance that he was not prepared to accept the Motion, he did not get as far as moving the exact words. Therefore, he directed the Clerk at the Table not to enter it May 15, 1446

The Chairman said, the Amendment raised a general principle—whether the rates were to be divided between owner and occupier; whether certain arrangements were to be made as to future tenancies. In what proportion the rates were to be divided between owner and occupier, and so forth, were subsidiary questions to the main question, whether the owner was to be liable at all. If the Committee decided that it would not insert the words "and owner," all other Amendments which contemplated the owner being made liable would naturally fall to the ground. If, on the other hand, the Committee inserted the words, it would be open to the Committee to make such limitations with regard to the liability of the owner as might seem to the Committee reasonable May 18, 1618

The Chairman said, it seemed to him that if the Committee now declined to draw a distinction between arable and grass land they would not be prepared to entertain the question at a later stage May 18, 1647

The Chairman said, that, in calling upon the hon. Member for South Shields to move the next Amendment, he would like to say that there were several Amendments in the names of the hon. Member for Leicestershire, the hon. Member for Lichfield, the hon. Member for Stockport, and hon. Members for other places, all practically raising the same question of principle, namely, whether the letting value of the land is to form any factor in the question as to whether it is to receive relief or not. Therefore, in putting the Amendment of the hon. Member for South Shields, he should only put so much as would raise the general principle. If the Committee accepted the general principle, then it would be open to other hon. Members to amend his Amendment, otherwise they would find themselves completely shut out May 19, 1716

The Chairman said, there were two principles raised: one was the value of the farm, and the other the extent. The Committee should have the opportunity of discussing those principles and of pronouncing upon both of them; and, therefore, he should take care, in putting any of those Amendments, not to exclude any Amendment which raised either of those principles May 19, 1717

The Chairman said, that the hon. Member was violating his ruling. After the Second Reading of a Bill the House was assumed to have assented to the principle, and it was not competent for hon. Members, time after time, to get up to offer objections to the principle of the Bill. He must request the hon. Member, with whom he had been very patient, to deal more particularly with the Amendment May 19, 1729

The Chairman said, that he treated that Amendment with several others as raising the question of the value of the farm. As the House had decided that it would not take the value of the farm into consideration in settling whether or not relief should be given, the Amendment was out of order May 19, 1730

The Chairman said, that it would not be competent for the hon. Member, in the first place, to discuss that question upon a Motion for Adjournment. Neither would it be competent for the hon. Member to appeal from a decision of the Chairman to the Speaker. He must, therefore, decline to put the Motion May 19, 1731

The Chairman said, if the hon. Member would look at the Amendment, he would see that, in the shape in which he proposed to move it, it did not make sense. This Amendment ought to have come after the word "England" in order to run in a proper form. He did not say that it could not be moved as a proviso to this subsection, but he did not think he ought to put it to the Committee in the form in which it now stood May 20 [41] 5

The Chairman said, he had decided that the question should be submitted to the Committee, so that it might have an opportunity of considering it on the words "let at." "Let at nothing at all" was not covered by former Amendments May 20, 8

The Chairman said, the Amendment imposed, although in an indirect way, certain restrictions and conditions as to the relations between landlord and tenant, and therefore it could not be brought within the four corners of the Bill May 20, 12

The Chairman said, it was because the Amendment altered the general law of assessment in this country; and the only way in which that law could be altered was by a proper Bill, brought in in the ordinary course May 20, 13

The Chairman said, the Committee could not go back on the decision which had been come to—that the occupier should pay one-half the rate. If Amendments to that decision were admitted, there would be no end to the different fractions which could be moved as Amendments May 20, 13

The Chairman said, he thought he had explained very fully the grounds of his ruling, and he must call upon the hon. Member for Merthyr Tydvil to move his Amendment May 20, 13

The Chairman said, it would not be in order to attempt to reduce that period now, as the Bill had been amended in the first clause so as to fix the period May 21, 100

The Chairman said, there would be no object in continuing the Bill for five years if payment were only going to be made for three years May 21, 100

The Chairman said, that to discuss that question would be against the general principle which was adopted by the Second Reading of the Bill May 21, 101

The Chairman pointed out that the right hon. Gentleman the Member for West Monmouth had moved the omission of the whole section. There were certain Amendments on the Paper dealing with the specific questions the hon. Member for Plymouth was now discussing. If those questions were discussed at the present moment, they could not, of course, be discussed subsequently May 21, 127

The Chairman said, it was quite obvious it would not be right to have the same discussion twice over on separate Amendments May 21, 128

The Chairman said, there was one Amendment to the sub-section which he considered of some substance and which, he thought, merited some discussion, although it had been partially discussed upon the Amendment which was last before the House. In his opinion, it should not occupy very long, especially as it had been partially dealt with, and, therefore, for the present he could not accept the Motion of the right hon. Gentleman May 21, 129

The Chairman said, the point alluded to was not a point of order May 21, 150

The Chairman said, he understood the point the hon. Member was making; and he had said to him once or twice that it was not a point of order in the sense of the word: that it was a point for him to decide May 21, 150

The Chairman said, it was hardly his suggestion that the hon. Member should raise the question on Clause 4. What he pointed out was that it was not in order to raise it on Clause 2. The hon. Member had had an opportunity in the two hours that had elapsed to have raised the question. The question was: "That the question that Clause 4 stand part of the Bill be now put" May 21, 151

[The Chairman ordered the House to be cleared for the Division, but a considerable body of Members on the Opposition side of the House remained in their seats. Among those were Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Herbert Lewis, Mr. Dillon, Dr. Tanner, Mr. Donal Sullivan, and Sir J. Brunner. As several of those hon. Members rose there were cries of "Sit still!" from Mr. Lloyd-George and Dr. Tanner. Finally, when all but those who remained seated had passed into the Lobbies, the Chairman said he must request the hon. Members to proceed to the Division Lobbies. If hon. Members would not proceed to the Lobby he should have to direct the attention of Mr. Speaker to their conduct May 21, 151]

[The CHAIRMAN of COMMITTEES, who addressed Mr. SPEAKER from the Treasury Bench, said: I have to report to you, Sir, that a Division having recently been called, I directed the Ayes to go into the Aye Lobby, and the Noes to go into the No Lobby. But some hon. Members who had called out "No!" declined to proceed to the "No" Lobby. I requested them to take the usual course and proceed to the Lobby; but the hon. Members still declined, and I heard some cries of "Sit still!" I am not in a position to give the names of all the Members who were present, for there was a considerable number; but amongst those who were present and who declined to obey my summons were the hon. Member for the Carnarvon Boroughs, the hon. Member for the Flint Boroughs, the hon. Member for East Mayo, and the hon. Member for Mid Cork May 21, 152]

The Chairman withheld his assent, and declined then to put that Question May 21, 162

The Chairman withheld his assent, and declined then to put that Question May 21, 163

The Chairman said, he must request the hon. Member for West Wicklow to go into the Lobby May 21, 165

The Chairman said, then, under Standing Order XXVII, he considered the conduct of the hon. Member was disorderly, and he must request him to withdraw May 21, 164

The Chairman said, the Chairman of Committees had power to request a Member whose conduct was disorderly to withdraw May 21, 164

The Chairman said, he must ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to see that the hon. Member withdrew May 21, 164

The Chairman said, he understood the valuation had already been made, and therefore the proposal that the valuation should be made in this manner was clearly not applicable May 21, 165

The Chairman said, the matter was certainly rather complicated, but he understood that the valuation had taken place, and therefore the Amendment would not be in order May 21, 165

The Chairman said, the hon. Member was now going into an estimate as to the difficulty of separating the value of land and buildings. The Committee had decided that this was to be done. The only question was whether additional valuers, appointed by the Local Government Board, were to be employed for that purpose May 21, 172

The Chairman said, the hon. Member was discussing a question which the House had disposed of. The House had decided that the valuation was to be divided, and the only question before the Committee was whether that division should be made by official valuers May 21, 174

Agricultural Rating (Scotland) Bill

The Chairman said, he had great doubts then whether the Amendment was in order, not on the point which had been already raised, but on another point. The Committee had already decided that that clause was to come into operation on the 15th day of May next after the passing of the Act, and during the continuance of the Act certain things were to happen. The effect of the Amendment would be to limit what the Committee had already decided. There was no proof that existing leases would continue for five years during the whole of the continuance of the Act. Indeed, some existing leases might only run for six months. The Amendment was therefore out of order Aug 3 [43] 1383

The Chairman said, the question was involved in some difficulty, especially to one who was not intimately acquainted with the Scottish system of valuation and assessment, but first he must say it did not seem to arise there. It was a question that, perhaps, would arise upon the 4th Clause, when it came to be decided how the money was to be distributed. It also appeared to him, as far as he had been able to understand it, that the effect of the Amendment proposed by the Lord Advocate would be this—that, whereas in classified parishes before the Bill came into operation, there was a deficit, and that deficit had to be filled up by other ratepayers, under the Amendment, if it were inserted and the Bill passed, that deficit would not be filled up by other ratepayers, but by the State; therefore, in so far, the holders of agricultural land would be benefited Aug 4, 1468

The Amendment did not alter the Bill. The Amendment could not be more out of order than the Bill, and whether the Bill itself was out of order was not for him to decide. That was an objection to be taken on or before the Second Reading. The Amendment did not go beyond the provisions of the Bill, and therefore the Amendment was in order Aug 4, 1468

The hon. Member had raised the same point a few hours ago, on which he gave a ruling to the best of his ability. It was true that incidentally certain occupiers of land and heritages, non-agricultural, would be relieved, but eventually the relief would go to holders of agricultural land and heritages. The Bill, with the Amendment then inserted, simply made certain that the land would be valued at the lower rate in future. If they were correct in that view there was nothing out of order in it. In those matters they were not guided solely by the title of the Bill, but had to consider the general scope and intent of the Measure. Strictly there was no appeal from his decision, but if the hon. Member was not satisfied with it there would be another opportunity for him to raise the point of order Aug 4, 1507

The Chairman said, the Amendment was quite in order. The effect of it would be, of course, to decrease the amount available for the relief of agricultural rates by the sum by which the amount provided for the congested districts was increased. The hon. Member would observe that the subsection dealing with the matter of the congested districts came second, and was, so to speak, a second charge on the funds available. The hon. Member was entitled to move to increase the amount, but of course the amount available for the relief of the rates would be diminished Aug 5, 1538

Army Estimates: £2,133,000 for Warlike and Other Stores (Supply and Repair)

The Chairman said, if the hon. Member had called his attention specially to the particular decision he should have been prepared for it. But the decision he believed only amounted to this, that Estimates could not be taken unless Effective Supply were put down Mar 27 [39] 283

Budget Resolutions

The Chairman said, the hon. Gentleman was then discussing the whole question of the expedition up the Nile. So far as it had any financial bearing upon the Budget it would be in order, but the general policy clearly would not be in order April 23 [39] 1572

The Chairman said, it was not necessary to move a reduction to ask the question or to call attention to the matter April 24, 1677

Consolidated Fund (Appropriation) Bill

The Chairman said, he was afraid there was nothing to be discussed on this Bill, because the Bill only sought to appropriate to a particular subject those grants which had already been made by the House. The question might perhaps be raised on the Third Reading Aug 13 [44] 817

Diseases of Animals Bill

The Chairman said, he thought the hon. Member must be aware that he was not in order in dealing with that question. The question before the Committee was solely whether the Order should be made by the Privy Council June 2 [41] 317

The Chairman said, he must remind the hon. Member that he was transgressing his ruling. The only question was whether any relaxation of this Act would be possible by allowing an Order in Council to pass. The hon. Member must strictly confine himself to the point June 2, 317

The Chairman said, the Amendment of the hon. Member for East Norfolk (Mr. Price) was not in order on the ground that, as the Committee had refused to Her Majesty in Council the power of modifying the Act, it was obviously impossible for the Committee to agree to give any such power to a County Council June 2, 342

The Chairman said, the clause was not in order on two grounds. First, because the Committee had already decided that an Order in Council, and without stating how that Order originated, should not prevail as against the Bill. The hon. Member proposed in that clause that an Order in Council should not only suspend, but should actually repeal, an Act of Parliament. At all events, in his opinion, that was against the decision already arrived at. The hon. Member contended that his clause was different, because under it the Order in Council did not come into force until an Address had been presented by one of the Houses of Parliament; but that was immaterial. That which actually suspended the Act was the Order in Council, however it may have originated. On that ground the clause was out of order. He also thought it was very doubtful from the constitutional standpoint whether it would be in order to admit a clause which proposed that the Address of one House of Parliament should have the effect of repealing an Act of Parliament June 2, 361

Education Bill

The Chairman said, the next three Amendments were not in order, because they proposed to amend words which were not enactive but descriptive in the clause. The next Amendment, that of the hon. Member for Carnarvon, was really the substitution of a fresh clause for Clause 1, and could not be raised there. If the clause were negatived, then the hon. Member might bring his up as a new clause. The same remark applied to the Amendment of the hon. Member for Northamptonshire. With regard to the Amendment of the hon. Member for Shoreditch, he had pointed out to him that his Amendment was in the wrong place. With regard to the series of Amendments by the hon. Member for Newcastle-under-Lyme, they raised a scheme alternative to that contained in the first clause, and an Amendment which raised an alternative scheme was not properly an Amendment Therefore, the proper course for the hon Member to take would be, if that clause were negatived, to bring forward a new clause June 11 [41] 873

The Chairman said, that would be so, no doubt; if that Motion were made then, Amendments would be excluded June 11, 873

The Chairman said, they had not reached that point yet. With regard to the Amendment of the hon. Member for Tavistock, that should properly come in as a proviso to the clause, as he had pointed out to the hon. Member. The Amendment of the hon. Member for Dundee also stood in the wrong place; there was a clause in that Bill dealing with the date at which the Act was to come into force, and that was the proper place to bring in that Amendment. With regard to the Amendment of the hon. Member for Lowestoft making an exception in regard to the County of London, that should be raised as an Amendment to Clause 31, where the exceptions to the Act were dealt with. The Amendment of the hon. Member for [cont. [cont.

South Islington, as he had pointed out to him, should also more properly be raised later. The Amendment of the hon. Member for West Islington was also really a new clause. The same remark applied to the Amendments of the hon. Members for Ipswich, for West Nottingham, and for the Cambridge University June 11, 874

The Chairman said, the purpose of the hon. Member was, he understood, to omit the sub-section with a view of subsequently omitting the whole clause; the proper way would be to negative the clause; then it would be open to the hon. Member to move a substitution June 11, 874

The Chairman said, he did not like to speak with regard to any Amendments except those he had seen on the Paper. In his opinion the Amendments which were then on the Paper before him, and to which he had referred, were of such a character as not to be Amendments to the clause, but suggestions for wholly different machinery; therefore those matters could not be introduced as Amendments to a clause because they practically destroyed the whole clause by substituting machinery of a totally different character. That could only be done by introducing a new clause June 11, 874

The Chairman said, that so far as submitting a scheme to the Education Department was concerned that was an Amendment, but he understood that the hon. Member did not intend to move it June 11, 875

The Chairman ruled that the Amendment would not be in order until they had negatived the Amendment before the House June 11, 923

The Chairman said, he certainly remembered the same thing occurring before, and his predecessor ruled that it was very unusual indeed to move an Amendment to an Amendment to an Amendment, and declined to put it. He thought he was bound to follow that course June 11, 923

The Chairman said, the hon. Member was not entitled to discuss some Amendment which he might be able to raise at a later stage of the Bill. The only Amendment now before the House was the one moved last night, and it was not open to any hon. Member to discuss the possibility of some future Amendment which might be introduced into the Bill, supposing the right hon. Baronet's Amendment was carried June 16, 1192

The Chairman said, he thought the right hon. Gentleman was aware it was not usual to reflect on the acceptance of a Motion for the Closure. It was not in order to go back upon that question June 16, 1234

The Chairman said, the question of the relation of the County Council to this particular Committee did not really arise on that Amendment, except incidentally June 17, 1280

The Chairman said, he did not rule that the Debate was entirely out of order. What he intended to say was that it might be referred to incidentally, but that, properly speaking, the relation between the County Council and the Committee, if appointed, arose at a later stage upon the words "acting by that Committee." The Amendment, if adopted, would preclude the County Council from appointing a Committee at all June 17, 1280

The Chairman said, that was not the question then before the Committee at all. There was no such Amendment, and the sole question was whether the County Council should or should not appoint the Committee for the purpose of the Act June 17, 1294

The Chairman said, if the right hon. Gentleman confined himself to that of course he was in order. At the same time it was very difficult to limit hon. Members on that Amendment, because it raised such a large question. He hoped the Committee would endeavour as far as possible to keep within reasonable limits June 18, 1352

The Chairman said it was unusual to quote leading articles in newspapers as a reason for accepting an Amendment June 18, 1380

Finance Bill

The Chairman said, the whole question of the Tea Duty was not raised by that Amendment. The only question was, whether any differentiation should be made between tea from Her Majesty's dominions and tea from foreign countries, and he must ask the right hon. Gentleman to confine himself to that Question July 7 [42] 938

The Chairman said, the hon. Member was entitled to move to reduce the Income Tax from 8d. to 7½d., or to strike the whole of Clause 19 out, but he did not think he was entitled to go into the question of Schedule "B." That was specially dealt with in the next clause, and if he dealt with it in the present clause it was obvious that the same matter might be dealt with twice over, which would be quite contrary to the rule governing proceedings in Committee July 8, 1031

The Chairman said, if the Amendments were out of order on Clause 20, which dealt with Schedule "B," it was obvious they would be equally out of order on Clause 19, which did not. The hon. Member was entitled to move to reduce the 8d. to any other sum, but he could not raise the question of how this particular deficit was to be met, which would be caused supposing his Amendment were to be carried July 8, 1031

(Rulings as Chairman of Committees)—cont.

The Chairman said, he gathered from the hon. Member's remarks that he took exception to the whole clause, and not Sub-section (1) only. Of course if the hon. Member were successful in striking out Sub-section (1), Sub-section (2) could not stand alone. If that were so, obviously the remarks of the hon. Member ought to be made when he (the Chairman) put the Question that Clause 25 stand part of the Bill. That would be the proper place to raise his objection to the whole clause July 9, 1130

The Chairman said, the objection which the hon. Member took was vital to the whole Clause. If the hon. Member were successful in carrying his Amendment, the natural effect would be to strike out Sub-section (2) as well as Sub-section (1). His objection, in other words, was to the root of the whole clause, and therefore the proper time to take it was when the clause was put as a whole. Then the hon. Member would be entitled to urge his objection July 9, 1130

Land Law (Ireland) Bill

The Chairman ruled that three Amendments, which stood on the Paper in the names of Mr. Dillon, Mr. Clancy, and Mr. Kilbride, could not be moved as a commencement to Clause 1, but might be moved subsequently June 12 [41] 979

The Chairman said, that was so, and he could not accept the Amendment June 12 982

The Chairman said, he thought not. The Amendment standing in the name of the hon. Member for Galway was really drafted in an improper form, because it proposed to leave out a sub-section of the Bill in order to insert another sub-section almost identical with that proposed to be left out July 16 [42] 1651

The Chairman said, the hon. Member for Cork City was entitled to move the omission of the whole Sub-section (c), and upon that Amendment he was entitled to support it on the ground that it ought to be omitted from the Bill, or on the ground that he had an alternative scheme to suggest. If the omission were carried, then an alternative scheme could be submitted. The words he should have to put if the hon. Member for Cork moved his Amendment, were the first words of the sub-section, in order to permit subsequent Amendments to be raised, supposing the Amendment of the hon. Member for Cork were not carried July 16, 1651

The Chairman said, the Motion of the hon. Member for Galway, although in form

proposing to omit Sub-section (c), yet was really a substitute for it, and proposed to re-enact ipsissimis verbis three-and-a-half lines of Sub-section (c). Therefore, in his opinion, the Amendment of the hon. Member for Galway was not properly drafted. He (the Chairman) had re-drafted it in such a way that the hon. Member could move his Amendment after he put from the Chair the Question that the first words of the sub-section stand part of the Bill July 16, 1651

The Chairman said, he thought the form of the Amendment of the hon. Member for Galway City was irregular, and that it was not properly drafted. If the hon. Member for Cork City proposed simply to omit Sub-section (c) he was in order, and he said that was what he intended to move. He called upon him July 16, 1652

The Chairman said, if the Amendment were adopted, he should take it to mean that the Committee had decided not to deal with town parks in that Bill, and therefore all the other Amendments on the Paper would fall to the ground July 16, 1656

The Chairman said, it was perfectly obvious that on the Schedule it would not be possible to discuss fresh provisions in regard to town parks. The only question would be whether that particular sub-section applying to town parks should be repealed or allowed to remain. It would not be possible to propose fresh conditions, such as extent, value, and matters of that sort as regarded town parks July 16, 1656

The Chairman said, he thought it was clear that the best place to decide the questions as to the size of the holdings, the population of the towns, and so forth, was upon the sub-section the Committee were then discussing. He was not prepared to say that the matter could not be raised by a new clause July 16, 1662

The Chairman said, he thought he ought to remind the hon. and gallant Member that as he had put the Question—namely, That Clause 4 stand part of the Bill—it would not be in the province of the Committee to consider Amendments to the clause. If a new clause came up, of course an opportunity would be afforded to move Amendments July 16, 1694

The Chairman said, hon. Members would recollect that the Leader of the House suggested that Clause 4 should be negatived in its present shape in order that it might be re-introduced in an amended form, and he gathered from the general sense of the House that that proposal commended itself to the acceptance of the House. Hon. Members would recollect that he paused a little before he put the Question. He saw that if he did put that Question Amendments could not be moved unless the Motion were withdrawn. If the Motion were withdrawn, the Clause would be open to amendment July 16, 1694

The Chairman said, that he had perhaps acted irregularly in putting the Question that the clause stand part of the Bill. The reason why he did it was because he gathered from the manner in which the statement of the First Lord of the Treasury was received, generally in silence and in some parts of the House with approval, that the Committee generally approved of the course proposed. Therefore, he took what was an irregular course. The only way of reinstating the situation was that the First Lord of the Treasury should withdraw his Motion, and that he (the Chairman) should commit the further irregularity of withdrawing the Question he had put July 16, 1696

The Chairman said, the position in which the Committee then stood was that they were resuming the Debate which was interrupted by the ordinary Rule last Thursday; and, therefore, he put the question that day that Clause 4 stand part of the Bill. But, as the right hon. Gentleman had stated, he pointed out last Thursday that the position would be regularised if the Leader of the House would withdraw the Motion which he then made, and then the clause would come up for consideration. When that point was reached the Motion of the Leader of the House, which stood first on the separate Paper, would come on in due course, and he could then deal with any subsequent point of order which the right hon. Gentleman desired to raise July 20 [43] 194

The Chairman said, on the first point submitted by the right hon. Gentleman, he had to say that the form of words specially laid down in the new Order was: "That a certain clause or certain clauses shall cease to form part of the Bill;" and the ordinary form of words after any Amendments had been disposed of was: "That the clause stand part of the Bill." He confessed that he did not see himself any distinction of effect between those two forms of words. The ordinary practice of the House, when it desired that a clause be withdrawn, was that it was negatived. That was sometimes done in order that a similar clause might afterwards be brought up as a new clause. It was by no means a new form of procedure. Sometimes it had been discovered that an Amendment, which should have been inserted in an earlier part of a clause had not been inserted—that the clause did not carry out the intention of the Committee. Thereupon the clause was negatived in order that a corrected clause might be re-introduced as a new clause. He did not see that he could draw any distinction between the two forms of words to which he had referred. In those matters it appeared to him that he ought to consider what was the intention of the House in negativing the clause. If a Committee negatived a clause because it desired to deal with it in an amended shape, as a new clause, he thought it would be in order to consider such revised clause when it came up as a new clause. If, again, it should be the intention of the Committee to reject a clause because it did not approve the principle of the clause, then it would not be in order to re-introduce a clause to the same effect at a later period. With regard to the other point raised by the right hon. Gentleman, he did not read the Rule in the same way that the right hon. Gentleman did. He read the Sessional Order in this way: When a Member in charge of a Bill in Committee desired to withdraw from a Bill any clause, he might, after two days' previous notice, move, either at the commencement of Public Business at any sitting before such clause was reached, to leave out such clause, or he might make the Motion when such clause came on for consideration in Committee. There were two opportunities afforded an hon. Member after he had given two days' notice to deal with the clause or clauses—the first was at the commencement of Public Business, that was to say, after the termination of Questions; the hon. Member might then move that such clause cease to form part of the Bill, or he might make the same Motion in Committee when such clause, or the first of such clauses, came on for consideration. That was the way he read the Rule, and upon that reading he should hold that if the right hon. Gentleman the First Lord of the Treasury moved the Motion which stood in his name it would be in order for him to do so July 20, 195

The Chairman said, the word "consideration" did frequently bear the interpretation suggested by the right hon. Gentleman, but it often bore another meaning. In the Standing Order referring to the Closure, for instance, the words were—"if a clause be then under consideration;" those obviously applied to the Committee stage, and not to the Report stage only. He had considered the point suggested by the right hon. Gentleman July 20, 196

The Chairman said, he did not think that when the House passed that Order it was intended that the details of clauses should be gone into at any great length. On the other hand, it was open to hon. Members to refer to the clauses which were proposed to be postponed in order to state the reasons why they should desire them to be proceeded with in due order; but it would not be in order to go into detail on the various sub-sections July 20, 203

The Chairman said, as he understood the meaning of the hon. Gentleman's Amendment, it was out of order. The Amendment proposed to make a charge upon the Treasury. Supposing the rate of interest were reduced, and failure were made in paying the annuity, the Treasury would lose by the difference between the two rates. If that were so, the fund would be diminished to that extent, and the State would be liable to make good the difference July 21, 353.

The Chairman said, if it were a fact that the Amendment would throw the liability on the Treasury, it could not, of course, be accepted without the consent of the Crown. He therefore ruled it out of order July 21, 355

The Chairman said, that it was very inconvenient not to have the Amendments on the Paper April 21 [39] 1408

The Chairman said, he carried out the Rule of the House, Standing Order CCXV. He counted all the Members who were within the House. Some rose outside the Bar; these he purposely did not count Mar 26 [39] 196

The Chairman said, he had grave doubts whether the hon. Member would be in order in moving that Amendment. If he would look at the Schedule he would see the heading of the column in which his Amendment occurred was, "Expected Date of Completion." The column was really inserted in the Schedule by way of giving general information, and the hon. Member's Amendment, if carried, could have no enactive force Mar 26, 198

The Chairman said, he had already ruled that, if a Motion were made to diminish the sum allotted to a particular work, the Debate must be confined to that sum in respect of that work Mar 26, 213

The Chairman said, the right hon. Gentleman had made no such statement on that part of the Bill. At present, the only matter for the consideration of the Committee was the establishment of that college on shore Mar 26, 221

The Chairman said, the hon. Member seemed to be challenging his decision. He could not allow that to pass. The right hon. Gentleman made his statement on the Estimates. It was then open to the hon. Member to criticise the statement Mar 26, 222

Navy Estimates: £236,800 for Admiralty Office Expenses

The Chairman said, that question did not arise on the salary of the Secretary to the Admiralty June 26 [42] 194

The Chairman said, so far as he could gather, the hon. Member moved a reduction in the salary of the Secretary to the Admiralty on the ground that gunboats had not been sent to protect the fishermen in the north of Scotland from the trawlers June 26, 194

The Chairman said, the hon Member had not shown any ground for moving the reduction. It had been ruled already that the salary could not be reduced on account of the particular matter of complaint which the hon. Gentleman then alleged June 26, 194

The Chairman said, it was out of order to take exception on general grounds to the salary of a Minister. The hon. Member must allege some failure to carry out an official act, or some act wrongly performed. It was not open to the hon. Member in Committee of Supply to attack a Minister's character generally June 26, 195

Navy Estimates: 93,750 Men and Boys

The Chairman said, he did not think that necessarily meant that the hon. Member should move his Amendment first. If the hon. Member for East Mayo, who was in possession of the House on Friday, chose to conclude with a Motion he was entitled to do so Mar 9 [38] 477

The Chairman said it was rather difficult to draw a line in those matters. The custom had been, as he had already explained, that on the first Vote a general discussion was allowed upon everything contained in the Naval Estimates Mar 9, 497

Supply : £5,263 for Land Registry Office Salaries and Expenses

The Chairman said, nearly the whole of the discussion that had taken place was out of order. The discussion originated on a former occasion when he was not in the Chair. No discussion on legislation, or on legislation which might be possible in the future, was in order in dealing with Votes in Supply. He must, therefore, ask the Committee to confine itself to the question of the administration of the Land Registry June 5 [41] 563

Supply : Light Railways (Advances)

The Chairman said, they were not then discussing the Bill. The proposal then before the Committee was the grant that should be made from the Exchequer for the purpose stated in the Resolution which he had read to the Committee Mar 19 [38] 1414

The Chairman said, the fact that the Measure involved financial questions was apparent from the terms of the Resolution itself. The only question that could be discussed was whether the Treasury should be empowered to make the grants in question Mar 19, 1416

The Chairman said, he thought he ought to point out to the Committee that it appeared, on looking at the Local Government Act, that the only method by which those powers could be given to the different localities was by Provisional Orders—that was to say, by legislation. It was a well-known rule that in Committee of Supply future legislation could not be discussed Aug 10 [44] 404

The Chairman said, the Rule was, that, after a reduction had been moved upon an item, the Committee could not go back to a previous item. It was open to the Committee to discuss the whole Vote, but the hon. Member would have to confine himself to dealing with the matter in purely general terms, and not discuss items July 24 [43] 638

The Chairman said, it was the rule of the House which bound him as it did the hon. Member. When a question had been proposed for omitting or reducing any item, no Motion could be made or Debate allowed upon any preceding item. He might say, as an illustration, that he allowed the discussion just then upon the Celtic language on the ground that it was not referred to in any previous item. It was a matter of general interest in connection with the Estimate, but he stopped the hon. Member as soon as he came to the question of teachers' residences, because for that there was a special sum down in a special item July 24, 638

The Chairman, as a matter of order, said this question could not properly be discussed on the present Vote, because the salaries of London magistrates were not borne upon the Vote. There was no objection to asking a question upon it, but no debate was permissible June 5 [41] 573

The Chairman said, that matter was purely a matter connected with the Telegraph Service, and it was a well understood Rule of the Committee that only matters for which a sum of money was asked for in a Vote could be discussed April 9, 621

The Chairman said, the hon. Member was going into the question, at some length, of Post Office Telegraphs. He would observe that there was a special Vote relating to that. His remarks would, therefore, be more in order at a later stage April 9, 636

The Chairman said, he understood the hon. Member to say that the reason of that was that the Postmaster General had been appointed by the Leader of the House or some other Minister. If that were so the matter could not be discussed upon that Vote. The official acts of the Postmaster General, or his failure to perform some official act, could alone be debated April 9, 657

The Chairman said, that, as a point of Order, he ought to inform the Committee that the Government were perfectly at liberty to make a substitution in the Estimates Aug 7 [44] 151

Supply: £26,000 for Royal Palaces and Marlborough House

The Chairman said, that, inasmuch as the hon. Gentleman said that he dealt with a particular item, he did not think that he ought to put the reduction just moved. The hon. Member could divide in respect of the whole Vote April 10 [39] 717

Supply: £7,850 for Secretary for Scotland Office, Salaries and Expenses

The Chairman said, the question of superannuation allowances for the police in Scotland depended upon legislation, and not upon any administrative act of the Secretary of State, and therefore it could not be raised upon that Vote April 24 [39] 1663

Supply: £7,850 for Secretary for Scotland Office, Salaries and Expenses—cont.

The Chairman said, the hon. Member must find an opportunity himself. His only duty was to say that the discussion was not in order upon this Vote April 24, 1664

The Chairman said, that would have to be done by legislation of some sort, and possible legislation could not be discussed on that Vote. Criticism on administration might be made, but no discussion could take place on Bills which might be introduced April 24, 1665

The Chairman said, that the policy of the Government in carrying out its administrative duties was open to discussion; but the question whether the Government should or should not bring in some Bill which hon. Members might consider in the interests of Scotland could not be discussed. The hon. Member would see that if the discussion of possible legislative proposals were allowed any subject might be opened up April 24, 1666

The Chairman said, it had been repeatedly laid down by his predecessors that only administrative action was open to discussion. It was perfectly obvious that legislation could not be discussed April 24, 1667

The Chairman said, it was open to any hon. Gentleman to introduce a Bill to remedy grievances. A Minister could not by simply introducing a Bill make it become an Act, and hon. Members could not criticise the action of a Minister because he introduced, or did not introduce, a Bill. The opportunities of Supply were never meant to be used for that purpose, except in order to bring home to the Department the failure to administer an Act of Parliament April 24, 1669

Supply: £17,000 for Sunday Colonial Services (Supplementary)

The Chairman said, a reduction of the first item had been moved, and therefore a discussion could not take place on another item Feb 28 [37] 1407

The Chairman said, the right hon. Gentleman was now going away from the particular item of that Vote, and discussing future policy Feb 28, 1411

Supply: £10,000 for Universities and Colleges, Great Britain (Supplementary)

The Chairman said, he did not think such a question could be raised, as there was no item in the Vote for King's College Feb 28 [37] 1401

Telegraphs (Advances)

The Chairman said, that any general discussion such as the hon. Member wished to raise would be out of order. That Resolution simply allowed a Bill to be brought in, and when the Bill was brought in that would be the proper time to discuss the question April 23 [39] 1604

West Highland Railway Guarantee

- The Chairman said, he accepted the Motion for the Closure, because it was a purely formal Resolution which was before the Committee June 2 [41] 365

West Highland Railway Guarantee Bill

- The Chairman said, he did not see the relevancy of the hon. Member's remarks. The only question then before the Committee was whether the Treasury should have a free hand in dealing with the West Highland Railway Company, or whether it should be bound by the terms of the Agreement already entered into Aug 8 [44] 210
- The Chairman asked whether it would not be more convenient to get rid of those words, and then the whole Amendment of the Chancellor of the Exchequer could be discussed? The only question before the Committee was the omission of the words "on such terms as they may think fit." When those words were disposed of, it would be competent to hon. Members to move Amendments to the Amendment of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. But until those words were left out no Amendments could be moved to the Amendment of the right hon. Gentleman Aug 8, 211
- The Chairman said, he did not see how this arose on the question before the House, which was whether four articles of the Agreement should be inserted in the Bill or the whole Agreement Aug 8, 216
- The Chairman said, that no Amendment which involved any alteration of the Agreement would be in order, but it was possible for the Committee to impose certain terms upon the Treasury. He had pointed out that one of the provisions of the Amendment of the hon. Member for South Somersetshire would probably be in order if the Committee accepted the Amendment of the Chancellor of the Exchequer Aug 8, 217
- The Chairman said, that what he said was that the Agreement could not be modified. The House could reject it or accept it. If the House accepted it, it was obvious that the Amendment could not be modified. If they embodied the Agreement in the Schedule they could not discuss the Agreement on the Schedule Aug 8, 217
- The Chairman said, it seemed to him that the Amendment of the hon. Member was absolutely contradictory. If the House accepted the terms and conditions of the Agreement, it was unnecessary to say that those terms and conditions should be consistent with the provisions of the Act Aug 8, 217
- The Chairman said, he had already pointed that out once or twice, and he must really ask hon. Members to confine their remarks to the definite point before the Committee, which was with regard to Articles 1 and 4 only Aug 8, 218

- The Chairman said, that would not be in order. The hon. Member should have moved to omit Article 1 Aug 8, 218
- The Chairman said, the hon. Gentleman forgot that the principle of the Bill, which was that that guarantee should be given, had been adopted. The arguments of the hon. Gentleman would have been more properly addressed on the Second Reading of the Bill. All they had to do then was to discuss the details Aug 8, 219
- The Chairman accordingly put the Question, "That those words be there added," and ordered the House to be cleared for a Division, whereupon several hon. Members exclaimed, "Tell them to stand up!" Aug 8, 227

Speaker, Mr.

THE RIGHT HON.
WILLIAM COURT GULLY, Q.C.,
Carlisle

Hungarian Kingdom Millennium

Communication from Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs Reported to the House May 8 [40] 872

Members' Votes

The question whether an hon. Member is entitled to Vote or not is one for the House and not for me, and can only be decided by a Motion, in case he should Vote, that his Vote be disallowed. The only assistance I can give is to state that the rule is that a Member who has a direct pecuniary interest in a Question ought not to vote Feb 14 [37] 349

I can only give the same answer. The House has on more than one occasion allowed the vote of a Director of a Company on a Bill promoted by the Directors. On some other occasions it has given a decision which is somewhat conflicting with this. It is for the House, and not me, to decide Feb 14, 350

Notices of Motions

If it is written by another, with the authority of the hon. Member, it is sufficient Feb 19 [37] 637

Private Business

It can be put down for to-morrow and the hon. Member can make any arrangement in the meantime for its being taken on a more suitable day if that could be done June 25 [42] 53

Question of Privilege

If the hon. Member is raising any Question of Privilege, he is entitled to do so; or he is entitled to make a personal explanation; but he must do either the one or the other Mar 17 [38] 1176

If the hon. Member has a Question of Privilege to raise, he should first call attention to the fact on which he proposes to raise it, so that it may be before the House. It may be there is no Question of Privilege Mar 17, 1176

The hon. Member is complaining of an article in a newspaper as a Breach of Privilege. If he has a copy of the paper it will be read by the Clerk at the Table, or those parts of it which the hon. Member complains of Mar 17, 1176

I have considered it, and although there can be no doubt that the newspaper article or the part of it which has just been read does make a serious attack on the private character of the hon. Member, I cannot say that it constitutes a case of Privilege.

In order to constitute a case of Privilege there must be some attack on an hon. Member in respect of his conduct as a Member of the House. In the present instance there is a violent attack, no doubt, made on the character of the hon. Member in respect of transactions outside this House altogether; and, therefore, I do not think it constitutes a case of Privilege. Nor do I think the fact that the writer of the article draws or states an inference that if these charges are true then the hon. Member, against whom they are directed, would not be fit to sit in the House—I do not think that that inference merely at the end of an attack which is entirely an attack upon the hon. Member in respect of matters outside the House would make that a Breach of Privilege, which would not otherwise be so. I therefore think the hon. Member cannot treat this as a Breach of Privilege. Mar 17, 1177

The hon. Member is entitled to make a personal explanation to the House. Perhaps I may say beforehand that the hon. Member has written to me a letter, which, I understand, he has also communicated to the Press, on the subject of what he is about to say. He will understand that a personal explanation in this House will not entitle him to go into details answering the matters which he had an opportunity of going into at the recent trial to which he refers. That is a matter of detail that could not properly be gone into here. It will be impossible for me to say to what extent he may go in the way of a personal explanation until I hear what he does wish to say Mar 17, 1178

I must tell the hon. Gentleman that I think he is going a little beyond the usual indulgence permitted to hon. Members making a personal explanation in appealing to hon. Members present in respect to what they have done as Counsel Mar 17, 1180

Questions

The question whether an hon. Member is entitled to vote or not is one for the House and not for me, and can only be decided by a Motion, in case he should vote, that his vote be disallowed. The only assistance I can give is to state that the rule is that a Member who has direct pecuniary interest in a Question ought not to vote Feb 14 [37] 349

I can only give the same answer. The House has on more than one occasion allowed the vote of a Director of a company on a Bill promoted by the directors. On some other occasions it has given a decision which is somewhat conflicting with this. It is for the House and not for me to decide Feb 14, 350

I do not feel justified in expressing an opinion on the matter. The hon. Member's Question does not raise any point of Order or construction of any Standing Order. It is matter which may be used by way of argument for the rejection or amendment of the proposed Resolution. It is impossible for me to say that the Rule will ultimately stand in the shape it does. But in whatever shape it may stand I shall then be ready to construe it to the best of my ability should occasion arise Feb 24, 951

The only Question on the Paper is about two particular men. If any general Question is to be asked it must be put down on the Paper separately Mar 2, 1462

The hon. Member is making a general statement. He must put a Question Mar 2, 1492

The hon. Member must not go into any subjects outside the subject-matter of the Petition Mar 25 [39] 86

All that the Rule really requires is, that the Speaker, or Chairman acting under that Rule, should have the names of the hon. Gentlemen who stood up taken down; it does not prescribe any method Mar 27, 281

It is not a common practice to enforce the Rule, but it has been done on one occasion certainly by myself, and then two of the Division Lists were brought in from the Lobby, and, while hon. Gentlemen were standing in their places, their names were ticked off, and from that the Division List was afterwards prepared Mar 27, 281

I cannot listen to anything in the nature of an appeal in reference to what took place in Committee Mar 27, 281

The hon. Member is going beyond the limits of a Question. He is practically making a speech by simply prefacing each sentence with the words "Is the right hon. Gentleman aware?" April 16, 1045

The right hon. Gentleman, as I understand, has given an answer that the matter is under judicial inquiry, and that therefore the subject is not a proper one for discussion. That is a conclusive answer April 16, 1045

The practice, when a Question has been asked and answered, of askng the Minister whether he is aware thait certain representations have been made by certain persons upon the subject is inadmissible April 17, 1170

The right hon. Gentleman is not in order in criticising beforehand a possible application of the Closure May 11 [40] 1017

The Rule is that when there is a Motion down on the Paper for the Suspension of the Twelve o' Clock Rule it shall be put without Amendment or Debate. It would be against the spirit of that Rule to raise a Debate by way of question and answer immediately before the Question is put May 12, 1152

Questions—cont.

I do not wish to refer to any particular case, but the Rule is quite clear that hon. Members are not entitled to use their cards for the purpose of retaining seats unless they are present at Prayers May 14, 1310

The hon. Member cannot comment on the Answer given him May 18, 1556

I was not aware, nor were the Clerks at the Table, I understand, when this Question was put down, that the Mayor of Sligo was an hon. Member of this House—I believe the hon. Member for Leitrim. But knowing now that he is a Member of this House I certainly think the Question is one which ought not to have been put on the Paper, because the Question really asks a Minister what private communications have been made to him in the course of his duty by a Member of this House. That is a kind of Question which I think ought not to be asked, and, certainly if I had known, when the Question was referred to me, that the Mayor of Sligo was a Member of this House I should have refused to allow it to be put on the Paper May 18, 1562

In absolute strictness the hon. Member might seem to have disentitled himself to move the Adjournment by giving his notice, but if the hon. Member tells me that in so doing he only referred to the Motion he now proposes to make I will not prevent the hon. Gentleman from proceeding May 18, 1572

I have no doubt the Order referred to is still in force, and it is the duty of the Serjeant-at-Arms to see it enforced by the police. I am not aware that anything in the nature of disorder has been brought to the notice of the Serjeant-at-Arms. As to whether the proceeding is a proper one I will not pronounce any opinion. I do not, however, understand that what has occurred amounts to disorder May 19, 1692

The practice of making inquiries at the end of Questions on matters arising out of Answers previously given is irregular. If Questions are not put at the time they should be put on the Paper June 29 [42] 271

The entry appears to be in order. I am entitled to refuse a Motion if I think it is an abuse of the Rules of the House. That refusal does not reflect any personal discredit on the hon. Member who moves. But it was my opinion at the time that, after an Order of this House suspending the Twelve o'clock Rule, that suspension became one of the Rules of the House for the night, and that it would be an abuse of that Rule to move the Adjournment of the House at so early an hour June 30, 400

The Question begins properly enough by asking whether "the Foreign Office was aware," etc., the hon. Member thus taking the responsibility of the truth of what he has stated, but the words "it is alleged" are certainly irregular, and ought not to stand in the Question July 16 1630

As to the first question there can be no doubt as to the right to move to withdraw the clauses. The right hon. Gentleman's point will arise later on, when the Motion is made to add this new clause and when the Chairman of Committees is in the Chair; and it would not be right for me to anticipate the Chairman's decision. As to the second point, that is also one on which I ought not to express an opinion. The right hon. Gentleman asks me to give an opinion as to the effect of certain proceedings taken in Committee on Thursday upon a question which will be raised in Committee to-day. That, I take it, is a matter on which I should be wrong in offering any opinion, as the whole of the facts are within the knowledge of the Chairman of Committees, and not in my knowledge, and the responsibility is with him. I should be quite wrong if I attempted to anticipate his decision July 20 [43] 153

Rules and Order of Debate

The only direction in which the hon. and gallant Member could argue in respect to America was on the Question how far the refusal of self-government to Ireland had affected the position of this country in the Colonies and abroad Feb 12 [37] 191

I must point out to the hon. Member, if he refers to the Margarine Acts of 1887 or the Sale of Food and Drugs Act of 1885, or any Act amending the same, in support of his Amendment, he is anticipating a Motion which is already on the Paper. Therefore, if, as I gather, the hon. Member is relying upon these Acts as being existing Acts which the Government ought to put more strenuously in force, he will be out of order in carrying on that line of argument Feb 18, 602

A Debate cannot be carried on when it has been anticipated by a Notice such as has been given in this case. The working of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act can be discussed upon the Motion which stands upon the Paper. If, therefore, that is what is proposed to be discussed now, it would be an anticipation of what is on the Paper, and therefore out of order Feb 18, 603

I must remind the right hon. Gentleman that he must not use any argument which is covered by a Notice of Motion. It is competent for him to compare the agricultural condition of England and other countries, but not to argue fiscal reform Feb 18, 619

The hon. Member for Northampton is quite right in his description of what would be the ordinary course. If any Debate takes place to-day, and it is resumed on Monday, it would be treated as one Debate, and those who spoke to-day upon the general Question would not, of course, be able to speak again on the main Question on Monday. The hon. Member is also right in saying that on the occasion of the introduction of new Rules in 1887, by the late Mr. W. H. Smith, there was, with the general consent of the House, a Debate upon the scheme which was laid before the House, and I think that it would be convenient and in harmony with other precedents when the new Rules of Procedure were moved, that a general Debate upon the proposed method of dealing with Supply should be permitted, if such be the pleasure of the House. There was an understanding upon previous occasions that hon. Members who had spoken in that General Debate should not be prevented by having so spoken from moving and seconding Amendments. As the hon. Member says, the Debate on that occasion was treated practically like a Debate in Committee, with the exception that hon. Members had not the right to speak as often as they liked upon the same Amendment. Subject to that, it was treated as a Bill in Committee, and a Member was allowed to move more than one Amendment. But, of course, that is entirely for the House. There may be a general desire in the House to conform to the strict rules. But, if there is a general understanding, the discussion might be conducted on the lines which have been before allowed with regard to Rules of Procedure Feb 20, 717

I think that the right hon. gentleman a little misunderstood what I said. I did not say that that course would be adopted, but that it was for the House to say what should be the course. It is not for me, but for the House, to say Feb 20, 718

By the ordinary Rules of the House he may speak on the main Question before the House; and afterwards, if an Amendment is moved, he may speak to that Amendment when it is put from the Chair Feb 20, 719

I understand the Rule of the House to be this: An hon. Member may put down a Motion in any form he likes, and it will remain in that form unless, upon an appeal made to me, I decide that it would be embarrassing and inconvenient to the House to deal with it in that shape. It does not appear to me that the Question is put in such a shape that it cannot be conveniently dealt with, because it will be at the option of hon. Members to move that everything after the first clause shall be left out. I do not, therefore, see any reason to interfere with the discretion exercised by the First Lord of the Treasury in putting down the whole of the Resolutions as one Feb 20, 719

The hon. Gentleman cannot discuss an Instruction upon the Motion for the Second Reading Feb 25, 1045

The hon. Gentleman's Amendment is not, I think, in order. It has been the practice to disallow an Amendment which merely amounts to a reasoned negative to a Motion of this kind Feb 25, 1095

The hon. Member would not necessarily be cut off from the general discussion. After a Debate had lasted a considerable time, the Speaker called upon any hon. Member who intended to move an Amendment. The moving of the Amendment might preclude the general discussion, but on the Amendment almost every question which had been debated yesterday and to-day was open to Members to discuss Feb 25, 1111

That so far as nineteen-twentieths of the general discussion was concerned, it might take place on the Amendment to leave out all after line seven Feb 25, 1112

The hon. Member would be out of order. It would be impossible to deal with a Resolution of this kind if, after the Amendments had begun, or while they were being gone through, hon. Members intervened with a general discussion. After the Amendments were gone through then it was open to take general discussion if the House was disposed to listen further Feb 25, 1113

The hon. Member would not be in order in replying to the observations of the hon. and learned Member. He must merely explain any statement of his own which has been misrepresented Feb 26, 1159

There are Amendments on the Paper raising the question as to whether the number of days should be 20 or 25, and it will be more convenient that the discussion as to the number of days should be taken on those Amendments Feb 27, 1292

I must remind the hon. Member that that is hardly relevant to the Amendment. The Question raised by the Amendment is, whether a time limit should be applied to Supply Feb 27, 1299

The Twelve o'clock Rule was suspended by order of the House, and there was a general understanding that the discussion of the new rules was to be brought to a close that evening. Therefore, he was unwilling to put a Motion for Adjournment at that time Feb 27, 1328

The hon. Member will be in order in moving an Amendment to any part of the Resolution not yet reached Feb 27, 1334

The proposal of the Government was that Supply should be finished by the 5th of August, and this was a proposal that the limitation should be agreed to on condition that other business was also stopped. In that view the Amendment was not out of order Feb 27, 1340

I would remind the right hon. Gentleman that the Amendment has been passed. The hon. Member could move any Amendment when the time came Feb 27, 1352

That is not what the clause says. The clause, as it now stands, is, "He may, after notice given." Those words, "notice given" are read as if they were in brackets—"either at the commencement of," and so forth—"move" Feb 27, 1352

The clause will be struck out in the shape it is at the time the Motion is made Feb 27, 1353

This is not pertinent to the Amendment before the House. The hon. Member is now asking what is the intention in leaving out the first three or four lines, whereas the only question now is whether, on the Question that has already been settled, there shall be a discussion before it is put to the Vote of the House, or whether it shall be put without discussion Feb 27, 1354

As far as I can see, that is not pertinent to the purport of the Bill. This Bill is merely a Bill to enable the Local Government Board to set right any mistakes made in working the election machinery. I do not see anything with regard to qualification in this Bill, nor anything about fixing a date Feb 28, 1429

In what part of the Bill is there anything about date of meeting? As I read it, this is a Bill under which, when any difficulty arises in consequence of any defective machinery at elections, the County Council may by Order do anything which appears to them necessary or expedient for the proper holding of the meeting Feb 28, 1430

I will put the Instruction as two separate questions Mar 2, 1459

A Division having commenced before half-past five, the next Question in order may be put after that hour, and the Member in charge of the Bill may move that the Question be now put. Mar 4 [38] 177

I think the Amendment is not in order. As it stands on the Paper it would raise a debate on a Vote of Censure on the Foreign Policy of the Government, and would be too remote from the matters relating to the Estimates. As regards the question of the financial relations between England and Ireland, and the taxing of Ireland, I think these are matters which do not relate to the Navy Estimates. Mar 5, 241

The hon. Gentleman is justified in referring to the importance of a large Navy for the purpose of protecting Commerce, but he is not entitled to go into the whole question of Food Supply Mar 5, 278.

If the hon. Member repeats observations of that kind I shall have to draw the attention of the House to his conduct Mar 5, 305

It appears to me that this Bill is properly introduced as a Private Bill, that is to say, the Clauses relating to public matters are not so great in number or importance as to make it necessary to introduce it as a Public Bill Mar 6, 335

I will not interrupt the hon. Member who has just risen, but I may express the opinion that the Question has been fully debated, and the House may come to a decision upon it Mar 6, 344

I hope the hon. Member will not make it necessary for me to listen to these suggestions for the Closure Mar 6, 344

The hon. Member is not out of order, but I desire to say that the Question has been fully debated, and there ought to be, in my opinion, no further Debate on this formal Question Mar 6, 345

The Rule is strict, that the Instruction must be moved by the hon. Member in whose name it stands Mar 9, 420

The hon. Member is now discussing the merits of the Bill, and the arguments for and against them. I understand that his object is to show that the Bill should be referred to a Committee of the Whole House, but he is now going beyond what is reasonable. Mar 9, 474

I will put the first three paragraphs from the Chair, so that the general discussion can take place upon them. Mar 17, 1136

It is most unusual for an hon. Member to object to such a Motion, which is of a formal nature Mar 26 [39] 240

The hon. Member will not be in order on this Motion in entering into the affairs of the Soudan. They must be discussed on the Vote on Account, which is an Order of the Day Mar 30, 403

I can only call the hon. Gentleman to order if he transgresses. I cannot lay down for him a rule as to how far he may go Mar 30, 404

I ruled the hon. Member out of order because the matter which he proposed to Debate was one which could be debated on the Vote on Account; and it has been ruled before in this House that, when the Vote on Account is down for Debate, an hon. Member cannot introduce, on a Motion as to Adjournment, a subject which it is open to him to debate on the Vote on Account immediately afterwards Mar 30, 404

The hon. Member would not be in order in discussing the decision of the Chairman of Committee as to the Closure Mar 30, 416

This cannot become a general discussion on the passenger traffic and charges on the whole line. The objection must be confined to the fact that certain trains passing over this portion of the line will not convey third-class passengers April 14, 857

That Amendment is not in order, it is not confined to the Question before the House. It raises the general question of the conduct of the London and North Western Railway Company April 14, 859

The Question is always one for the House to decide whether an hon. Member has such a direct personal pecuniary interest as to disentitle him to vote April 14, 866

The hon. Member is not entitled to refer to the Closure in that way after it has been applied by the Vote of the House April 14, 867

The course taken by Mr. Speaker Peel on a somewhat similar occasion was to call upon the hon. Member whose Vote was in question to withdraw April 14, 868

That is the more correct definition. It is a precedent that may be laid down, but whether that precedent is converted into a principle must depend on the House April 14, 874

This is an ordinary Local Government Provisional Order Bill, to transfer from the Grand Jury to the Urban Sanitary Authority of Armagh jurisdiction as to roads, bridges, and footways. The hon. Gentleman would not be in order in discussing on such a Bill what the Urban Sanitary Authority ought to be, or has been, or as to how Armagh should be locally governed April 15, 941

I think on the Second Reading an hon. Member is not entitled to say that a matter which is not in the Bill ought to be in it, and then to argue a question which such matter would have raised April 15, 946

The Motion is not "by Order," and if it be objected to it must stand over April 15, 949

When an hon. Member who represents the promoters of a Bill names a day it is usual for the House to consult his convenience. If the House will not grant the hon. Member that indulgence the Bill ought to be deferred to the next day April 15, 950

I only put such a Motion when made either by the Chairman of the Committee in person, or by some one who represents him April 21, 1362

It is out of order to move Instructions contrary to the General Law in the case of a Bill of a particular company, which does not in itself specially refer to any power to alter the General Law April 27, 1707

An hon. Member cannot move more than one Instruction on a Bill, and the Instruction can only be moved by another hon. Member giving notice of it April 27, 1708

I am sorry to interrupt the hon. Member, but he is now dealing with matters which he is not entitled to go into, and which have no bearing on the Question before the House April 28 [40] 90

- The hon. Member will not be in order in going into those matters which will be pertinent to the Scotch Bill when it is introduced; but he will not be out of order in referring to the point that was stated when the Bill was introduced—namely, the proposed proportions of 80, 9, and 11 for the three countries, because, as I understand, if England receives 80, Scotland and Ireland would not receive more than 9 and 11 respectively April 29, 102
- I must tell the hon. Member that he is not entitled to go into the general question of the incidence of taxation between England and Ireland on this Bill. An incidental observation was made in introducing the Bill by the right hon. Gentleman in charge of it as to the proportions of England, Ireland, and Scotland, but there is nothing in the Bill to say that a certain amount only was to go to England, therefore there is nothing in the Bill itself dealing with the question of proportion. It was only because of the incidental observation of the right hon. Gentleman who introduced the Bill that I have permitted any reference to the subject April 29, 122
- To explain how the money is to be applied when it reaches Ireland is out of Order on this Bill April 29, 123
- I think the hon. Member is now travelling beyond the limits of the discussion on this Bill. He is entitled to deal with the fact of existing agricultural depression, but not to go into the whole history of the matter April 29, 134
- The only Question before the House is whether the Standing Order should be suspended in order that leave may be obtained to work certain tramways, and the hon. Member is not entitled to take this opportunity to make a general attack upon the London County Council May 4, 423
- No; I think not. It would be so usually upon a reasoned negative, but the Amendment here is of so specific a kind that it is convenient to confine the Debate to its terms. But the hon. Member was strictly and technically in order in speaking on the main Question, because in seconding the Amendment he was speaking on the Question before the Amendment was put May 4, 473
- On the face of it the object of the Bill is to change the description of the magistracy, but I understand the effect will be to give the Resident Magistrates a greater jurisdiction. If that is so, the remarks of the hon. Member are in order May 4, 527
- If the object of this Bill is to confer jurisdiction in Licensing matters, it is competent for hon. Members to speak of the qualifications of these Magistrates May 4, 528

- The hon. Member is going too far. He is going into an account of the conduct of a particular Resident Magistrate some years ago. That can hardly have any bearing upon the general Question whether Resident Magistrates should have the powers of Stipendiary Magistrates May 4, 532
- I do not think I can put that Amendment. The hon. Member can divide against the Motion, but Amendments of this description, in fact Amendments of any description to a Motion of this kind, are quite unprecedented May 13, 1263
- [Rulings re Instructions to Committee on Agricultural Land Rating Bill moved by Mr. H. Broadhurst, Mr. Luttrell, Mr Channing, Mr. D. Thomas, Mr. Knox, Mr. Bryn Roberts, Mr. Flynn, Mr. Lloyd-George, and Mr. J. A. Pease May 13 1266]
- The hon. Member will not be in order in discussing on this Instruction the relative claims of England and Ireland. If the Instruction is carried when the Bill is in Committee it would then be competent for the hon. Member to draw such a distinction May 13, 1269
- The Instruction is confined to the application of the Bill to Ireland May 13, 1272
- Those are not matters that seem to me to be pertinent to the Instruction. In the Bill, as I understand, there is no sum mentioned of £2,000,000 or £1,500,000. All that is mentioned is that half the rates on agricultural land shall be paid by the taxpayers. The Instruction asks that that provision should be extended to Ireland, and that does not involve any discussion of what would be a just and proper way of distributing the relief to Irish rates. That is a matter which, if the Instruction is carried, can be discussed in Committee, or when the Irish Bill is brought in May 13, 1274
- The hon. Member is not entitled to go into that. There is no sum mentioned in the Bill. It has been stated that it will amount in England, I understand, to £1,500,000, and the statement has been made that there will probably be £500,000 more, or something of that kind, available. The Instruction asks that the provisions of this Bill shall apply to Ireland—that whether there be money or not forthcoming for that purpose, half the agricultural rates in Ireland shall be paid just as they are in England. The hon. Member may not, on this Instruction, go into the financial question May 13, 1275
- The hon. Member is now dealing with a totally different matter. The history of what has taken place under the Act of 1888 has really nothing to do with this Instruction. I am not at all denying the importance of these matters, but they are not germane to the Instruction May 13, 1276

The hon. Member will not be in order in discussing that point at length. It is not germane to this Instruction, although it would be germane to the Bill relating to Ireland when it is brought in. The only proposal that can be dealt with now is that this Bill shall be extended to Ireland May 13, 1290

If the hon. Member is going to argue that the Bill should not be extended to Ireland because it is a bad Bill, that would not be open to him. He cannot discuss the merits of the Bill May 13, 1293

I must inform the hon. Member for Kilkenny and the hon. Member for Waterford that the Motions which stand in their names are not in order. The two first Motions are out of order because they deal with exactly the same subject-matter which was ruled out of order (on the ground of irrelevance) as the subject-matter of an Instruction at a previous stage of the Bill. The Motion of the hon. Member for the St. Patrick's Division is also out of order, because the clauses to which it relates have been struck out of the Bill May 19, 1675

Of course when the Bill is put down for Third Reading the hon. Member can move to reject the Bill; but the hon. Member will not be in order in using the arguments which would apply to the clause on the Paper May 19, 1675

The hon. Member cannot raise arguments applicable to all railways under the general law at the hour of Private Business May 19, 1675

In the first place, notice should have been given of New Clauses moved, this being the stage of consideration. I may also point out that it would be a futile proceeding to insert Clauses to force upon a railway company compulsory powers which it declines to take. And on the Third Reading only verbal Amendments are in order May 19, 1675

It is quite clear that the Chairman of the Committees has followed the proper course in ordering the clearance of the House during a Division, and those who refused to clear the House are not justified in their refusal by any notion which they may entertain as to whether the Division should or should not have been called. Therefore their action was out of order; and, if that conduct is persisted in, of course I shall have to name those hon. Members to the House. I understand that the hon. Members for Carnarvon and the Flint Boroughs are mentioned. Do I understand that the hon. Members for Carnarvon and the Flint Boroughs refused to clear the House? May 21 [41] 152

I am not speaking of a point of order; I am asking a question. Do I understand the hon. Member for East Mayo also declined to clear the House? May 21, 153

Those hon. Members having distinctly defied the authority of the Chair, and having persisted in so doing, I must, in consequence, name them to the House. I name Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Herbert Lewis, Mr. John Dillon, Dr. Tanner, and Mr. Donal Sullivan, for disregarding the authority of the Chair, and disorderly conduct May 21, 153

I understand that the hon. Members object to the course taken by the Chairman of Committees; but I would point out to them that they are now wanting in respect to the Chair in refusing to clear the House for a Division. It is not a rational protest to stay in the House. I hope the hon. Members will see the propriety of going into the Lobby May 21, 154

However unintentional it may be, it is disrespect to refuse to leave the House when the Chair, in the exercise of its duty, has put a question on which a Division has been called May 21, 154

Then I must ask the Serjeant-at-Arms to remove the hon. Members May 21, 154

I have a difficulty in putting that Motion at the present moment, because, when I was called in, the Committee was in the middle of a Division, and that Division must be disposed of before any other Motion can be entertained May 21, 157

When the Division is taken on the Closure, it will be taken with the Chairman in the Chair, and then the Committee will resume in the ordinary course, and unless I come into the Chair again through some action of the Chairman or Committee the right hon. Gentleman will not be able to make his Motion to me in the Chair May 21, 158

I must leave the Chair in order that the business may be taken up at the point at which it was left when I took the Chair May 21, 158

At this [the Report] stage of the Bill it is not competent to the hon. Member to argue that the amount of interest ought to be reduced, as this would be an attempt to increase the charge upon the public June 1, 261

[Mr. Speaker ruled out of order a number of Amendments on the ground that they proposed to give power to increase the public charge June 1, 264]

I think it will be best to raise that point on the clause providing when the Act should come into operation June 3, 399

I cannot accept the Motion. The Amendment is in the nature of a drafting Amendment to leave out certain words at this point, so that the proposal might be brought forward later on in a modified form June 3, 401

The hon. Member cannot do that until the words "one year" have been struck out June 3, 402

SPEAKER, Mr.—cont.

The hon. Member will be in order in proposing that "five years" be inserted if the proposal to insert "nine months" be negatived June 3, 402

I must rule the Amendment out of order on the ground that the House has, after long discussion, settled certain conditions on which a special advance can be made, and to insert the proposed words would render nugatory a decision already arrived at by the House June 4, 429

Although the Question before the House is the Amendment to the Amendment, I have allowed the Debate to cover both Amendments, because it is somewhat difficult to distinguish between what is specially pertinent to each. The right hon. Gentleman has already spoken upon the main Question, and, if he proposes to speak again, he must confine himself to the Amendment to the Amendment June 4, 460

I must rule both Amendments out of order, on the ground that no proposal to make persons pay a rate for which they were not hitherto liable can be moved on the Report stage of a Bill. Both Amendments would throw the burthen wholly on the ratepayers, whereas the Bill throws it in some cases on the Borough Fund, which is not always replenished solely by rates. The second Amendment also makes owners liable where they were not liable before June 4, 488

That again I must rule out of order, as it is open to exactly the same objection that I took just now to the hon. Member's former Amendment. The two next Amendments, standing in the names of the hon. Member for Mid Lanark and the hon. Member for Tavistock, one of which proposes that the owner shall pay half the rate direct, and the other that it shall be deducted from the rent, are also out of order for the reason I have already given. The Amendment standing in the name of the hon. Member for West Denbighshire is also out of order, because it proposes that every occupier shall be entitled to deduct the rate from his rent June 4, 489

As the clause proposes to put a greater tax upon the railway company it is out of order on the Report stage June 5, 502

Such a Motion would be in order, but, if it be objected to, it will have to stand over until a future day June 5, 502

The hon. Member will not be at liberty to discuss the policy of the English Government in the Soudan. He is precluded by the notice given by the hon. Member for Peckham from discussing statements and allegations in regard to the Soudan Expedition beyond what is necessary for explaining and enforcing his Motion, his Motion being confined to the question that Her Majesty's Government has kept back certain communications. It is only so far as it is necessary to explain that Motion that he is entitled to go into the correspondence. Beyond that he is precluded, not only because the general policy of the Government is not referred to in the Motion, but also because a discussion of the statements and allegations contained in the Green Book—beyond pointing out the importance of the documents which are kept back—will be out of order in consequence of their being anticipated by the Motion on the Paper June 5, 522

That is the very point which the hon. Member cannot discuss, because it is not in his Motion June 5, 523

If Sub-section (d) be struck out of the present Motion, the hon. Member's Amendment will then be in Order June 10, 788

I rule that Sub-section (d) must follow the fate of Sub-section (a) June 10, 789

I do not think the Amendment is out of order. The word "transfer" in the clause as passed does not necessarily mean a transfer by sale. It means a transfer for other than a money consideration. I think the hon. Member is, therefore, in order June 10, 793

[Rulings re Instructions to Committee on Education Bill, moved by Sir A. B. Forwood, Mr. Luttrell, Mr. D. A. Thomas, Mr. Brynmor Jones, Mr. E. J. C. Morton, Mr. E. Gray, Mr. W. F. Lawrence, Mr. J. H. Yoxall, Mr. H. S. Foster, Mr. J. C. Williams, Mr. T. P. Whittaker and Mr. H. J. Wilson June 11, 865]

[Ruling re Instructions to Committee on Land Law (Ireland) Bill moved by Sir J. Colomb and Mr. H. C. Plunkett June 12, 977]

The hon. Member would not be in order in discussing the past history of the Session, or how the present state of things came about. He must confine himself to the present state of things June 15, 1099

The hon. Gentleman is not in order in discussing past Debates June 15, 1101

I must remind the hon. Gentleman that all these statements have been made by a previous speaker June 22, 1655

The question is one of very great importance. There is no doubt that it is here proposed that money shall be taken from the taxes and shall be applied to a particular purpose; and in that sense it is a charge upon the revenue. I think that the House has always entertained those general intentions of which the right hon. Gentleman and the hon. Member for King's Lynn have spoken, of protecting the revenue from any new charge by preliminary proceedings in Committee, and by requiring the recommendation of the Crown signified by a Minister. But I have no power to make laws for the House. I have only to construe those which I find in the Standing Orders. If it is a case of the unwritten law I may declare what that law is, but where there is a Standing Order, I have only the power and duty of saying whether the Standing Order has been complied with; and, in the present case, looking at the Standing Order, I am of opinion that it has been complied with. It says that "any aid, grant, or charge upon the public revenue, whether payable out of the Consolidated Fund or out of moneys to be provided by Parliament, or for any charge upon the people," shall be first considered in Committee of the Whole House. I first call attention to the words "for any charge upon the people" because they refer to new taxation, and there is no proposal for new taxation in the Bill. But does this Bill create a charge upon the public revenue "whether payable out of the Consolidated Fund or out of moneys to be provided by Parliament"? If the intention of the House, when it made that Order in 1866, was that which the right hon. Gentleman apprehended, and that which I apprehend, the words used were somewhat unfortunate for the purpose, because if these words—"whether payable out of the Consolidated Fund or out of moneys to be provided by Parliament"—that is to say, by Votes in Supply—had either not been used; or, if there had been words of an entirely general nature, such as "from any source whatever," then I think it would have been clear that the right hon. Gentleman's contention was correct. The origin of the limitation was, I believe, that in 1866 the words "or out of moneys to be provided by Parliament" did not exist, but were added to meet a particular class of cases, with the result not uncommon in Acts of Parliament, that in desiring to be extremely particular, the intention of those who put in the words was defeated. The result seems to be that those words, "whether payable out of the Consolidated Fund or out of moneys to be provided by Parliament," limit the words, "charge upon the public revenue," and as the Order says that there is to be a Committee when there is a charge upon the public revenue, whether payable out of the Consolidated Fund or out of moneys to be provided by Parliament, it must follow that the necessity for a Committee is limited to those cases. In the Local Government Act of 1888 there was a fund created into which the tax gatherers were to pay direct certain moneys, and that fund was to be distributed again without ever going into the Consolidated Fund. Although there was no decision given in the House on that matter, it was carefully considered by the authorities of the House at that time, and it was thought that it did not come within the words of the Standing Order. The present case seems to me to be precisely similar; and therefore I feel bound to rule that whatever the general intentions of the House may have been on this point, the words of the Standing Order do not cover this particular case, and no Committee is therefore necessary. If the House desires to secure all those precautions which are referred to in the Resolution of 1848, read by the right hon. Gentleman, it will be necessary to amend the Standing Order June 23, 1698.

[Mr. SPEAKER ruled out of order new clauses to Agricultural Land Rating Bill, moved by the hon. Members for Preston, Shoreditch, Linlithgowshire, and Aberdeen June 23, 1702]

I have already fully considered the argument which the hon. Gentleman has addressed to me, but it does not affect the view I have expressed. The new clause, standing in the name of the hon. Member for Anglesey (Mr. Ellis Griffith) — ("Official Valuers")—["The separation of the valuations of land and buildings shall be made by official valuers appointed for the purpose by the Local Government Board."]—and that in the name of the hon. Member for the Attercliffe Division of Sheffield (Mr. Langley) – ("Application of Act.")—["This Act shall not apply to any rate raised or levied in a municipal or county borough."] — ought to be brought on as Amendments to the clauses to which they relate, and not as new clauses. It is a very objectionable practice to put down as new clauses, for the purpose of securing precedence, matters which are simply matters of Amendment to the clauses already in the Bill, and these two clauses come under that head. The proposed new clause of the hon. Member for Anglesey will come in naturally as an Amendment at the end of Clause 5. As regards the Amendment of the hon. Member for Sheffield, there is an Amendment on the Paper in the name of the hon. Member for Shoreditch (Mr. J. Stuart) to the same effect, which has been properly set down as an Amendment to Clause 1, but not as a new clause June 23, 1703

The second clause referred to by the hon. Member does not, it is true, effect an alteration in the law, but, as I said before, the point is whether the subject matter is relevant to this Agricultural Relief Bill. The subject matter of this second clause is the mode in which property shall be assessed, and that is subject matter which is not relevant to the Bill June 23, 1704

I must rule this Amendment out of order, on the ground that the House has already agreed to the date, "the 31st day of March." The Amendment of the hon. Member is thereby excluded June 23, 1715

I must point out to the hon. Member that this Amendment and the two next Amendments on the Paper relate to the same subject. The first proposed to exclude boroughs, the second the Metropolitan District, the third Urban

Sanitary Districts. I think the convenient course would be to put certain words only which were common to all three, and, therefore, I will call on the hon. Member to move his first Amendment, but the question I shall put to the House will be that the words "not being situate in" be inserted. If those words are accepted other words might be added to them June 23, 1747

I think the hon. Member hardly follows what I have said. The proposition could be argued upon the question put, and if the House decided the question in the negative it would mean that the House did not desire to accept any of those Amendments. If in the affirmative each hon. Member could endeavour to add his own words June 23, 1748

If the Amendment is carried in the affirmative—that is, if the words "not being situate in" were carried and inserted in the Bill—then it would be open to hon. Members who have Amendments in respect of boroughs, metropolitan and urban districts, to endeavour to insert those Amendments or any of them. If the words are negatived it disposes of the matter June 24 [42] 11

It has been already expressly stated that after the words "not being situate" have been carried, words defining an area of any kind might be inserted, but if those words were not carried it would not be possible to move to insert words defining an area. Therefore the object of the hon. Member for Carnavon is excluded, and the Amendment is not in order June 24, 34

The question of the Scotch and Irish portions can be dealt with when they come before the House on the Bills which have reference to those countries, but it does not arise on the present Bill, which is confined to England June 24, 38

I think the Amendment about to be proposed is one that the House should have an opportunity of considering; but after that Amendment has been put, having considered the Amendments that follow, I shall be prepared to put the Question: That the clause stand part of the Bill June 24, 39

If the Motion of the right hon. Gentleman be accepted, it is one that, by the Standing Orders, must be put without Amendment, and it is irregular to debate it June 24, 43

I have considered the Amendments that stand against the rest of this clause; and those of the hon. Member for Northamptonshire, the hon. Member for the Ilkeston Division, and the hon. Member for North Monmouthshire are out of order for reasons which I need not go into. The other Amendments appear to me to be all Amendments which would necessarily be supported by the same arguments which the House has listened to on previous Amendments, and which the House has refused to accept by a large majority. It is under those circumstances that it appears to me to be a case in which the rule was intended to apply, and I therefore accept the Motion June 24, 47

I have not got the Standing Orders before me, not do I think it necessary to refer to them. This is a Closure Motion, and it is perfectly clear that a Closure Motion may be put at the moment of the interruption of public business, whether the interruption of business takes place at the half-hour or at the close of the Division that goes over the half-hour. The Question is: That the Question that Clause 1 stand part of the Bill be now put June 24, 48

The hon. Member is not in order in going into the general question of subventions or even into this particular subvention. The House has already decided in favour of the subvention by voting that there shall be paid money to the local taxation account, and this is only machinery for carrying out what the House has already voted June 25, 95

I do not think the hon. Member is in order on this Amendment in going into the general financial question. The only Question before the House on this Amendment is, whether it is necessary, having regard to the provisions of the Act of 1866, to insert these words. That is a mere drafting question June 25, 98

In putting the Motion I shall follow the usual course, so as not to exclude subsequent Amendments. I may add that the next Amendment, standing in the name of the hon. Member for Carnarvon Boroughs, does not make sense as it stands upon the Paper. Perhaps some mistake has been made in printing it. If no mistake has been committed I cannot put the Amendment June 25, 110

I rule the Amendment out of order on the ground that it proposes to raise the rateable value, and therefore increase the charge. The Amendment is also contrary to what the House has already agreed to in dealing with the first clause June 25, 117

This Amendment is not in order having regard to Section 2, which has been passed. Under Section 2, the money, which cannot be paid until these proceedings have been taken under Section 4, is to be paid in by the 31st of March, so that already, under the Bill, having regard to what has already been enacted under Section 2, "as soon as may be" means as soon as may be before the 31st of March, because the Bill already provides that something must be done, which cannot be done under Clause 4, by the 31st of March June 25, 118

The hon. Member has cited Clause 5 instead of Clause 40. The rule is, that an Instruction cannot be amended unless it is shown there is no substantial difference between the original and the amended form. There is in this case a substantial difference between what is done by Clause 5 and Clause 40 June 26, 138

I suggest that, as the statement referred to is not one to be made up annually, but once for all, the proper course will be to move for it in a return, which, no doubt, will be granted June 29, 295

I understand the Question to be, that, in addition to the certificate for payment into the Local Taxation Account, there shall be power to give a further provisional certificate for payment out of the Local Taxation Account. That will be only one pair of certificates June 29, 315

This and the next Amendment are consequential on the previous one, and all of them hang together. On those lines the Debate on the previous Amendment has proceeded, and many hon. Members, in speaking on the previous Amendment, have discussed the question of the impropriety of paying out of the Local Taxation Fund. I must say that, in these circumstances, a discussion on this Amendment is very much to be deprecated June 29, 319

It does not interfere with the general law of rating. This is an Amendment moved with respect to a particular change in the law of rating which is rendered necessary by this Bill. The Bill for the first time renders it compulsory to rate separately lands and buildings in cases where it was not necessary before, and an Amendment to provide for that compulsory separation is in order June 29, 327

The hon. Member is repeating arguments which have been used over and over again. The fact that the principle of rating raised in this Amendment is that which generally prevails in law was admitted by the learned Solicitor General at a very early stage of the Debate June 29, 331

I cannot accept that Motion at this hour. The next Amendment, which stands in the name of the hon. Member for Carnarvon, has already been disposed of by a previous Division, and also those standing in the names of the hon. Members for Anglesey and Devonshire. The Amendment of the hon. Member for Carnarvon, relating to appeal, will come on, on Section 6, which relates to appeal. The Amendment in the name of the hon. Member for Bethnal Green appears to me to be out of order, as it raises the question of three years, which has been already decided by the House June 29, 331

The Amendments which stand between the present point and the end of the clause do not appear to me to raise any question of importance either as regards drafting or substance, and I think there is not the slightest probability that any of them would be accepted by the House. Under these circumstances I accept the Motion of the right hon. Gentleman June 29, 336

It is true that the right hon. Gentleman the Member for West Monmouthshire has expressed an opinion that certain previous Amendments were of a substantial nature, and that the Chancellor of the Exchequer replied and took a somewhat different view of those Amendments; but neither of those observations was really pertinent to the Question before the House. I must ask the hon. Member not to pursue the subject further June 29, 342

If the hon. Member used such a word after the Question was put from the Chair, his action was extremely disrespectful to the Chair, and I must call upon him to withdraw it June 29, 346

I do not know whether the hon. Member is proposing to move the Adjournment of the Debate. If so, I may tell him that I shall not accept that Motion. By a large majority the House has practically decided, on the last Division, to go on with the consideration of Clause 9 June 29, 349

The hon. Member is at liberty to point out that the definition was introduced into the Irish Bill, but he cannot discuss the policy of the Irish Bill June 29, 363

If that is so the Amendment would be out of order, but I do not understand that it is so. If the Amendment increased the area, and consequently the amount of money that would have to be spent, it would be out of order; but, as I understand, it does not increase the area. It only means that the money should be handed over to some parish authorities instead of other authorities June 29, 369

After hearing the argument, that is my view. The first clause provides what the occupier of agricultural land has to pay. He has to pay half. Then the deficiency is to be made up, which is done by the second section; and towards making up that deficiency the only grant appears to be a grant to certain specified authorities. Among those the parish council or parish meeting are not included, and therefore to include them would be to increase the charge. For that reason the Amendment was out of order June 29, 371

It seems to me somewhat doubtful whether the Instruction is in order or not, and if it had been objected to I should have liked some further time to consider it. As it, however, appears to be accepted by general consent, I do not think it right to raise any objection July 13, 1305

The hon. Member was good enough to furnish me this morning with the points he intended to raise. I think the Bill is quite in order; because, in the first place as regards the point that this is a grant of money, the 58th Standing Order relates only to a grant of money to the Crown. It does not, in the first part of it, contain the words "to the Crown;" but I am quite clear that the meaning of it is, that no grant of money shall be made to the

Crown, except in Committee of the Whole House That, I believe, is the meaning which has always been attributed to the words ever since the Order was passed. As regards the other point—that the remission of the Land Tax is a release or compounding of a debt due to the Crown the hon. Member seems to have confused two things, the repeal by statute of a statutory liability to pay a tax for the future and the remission of a present debt. This is not the case of a present debt to the Crown which it is proposed to release. If anyone owed Land Tax for last year or the year before, and it was proposed to relieve him from the payment of such arrears of taxation, that would be the release of a debt due to the Crown and would come within the provisions of the Standing Order; but the present proposal, being merely one to repeal an existing tax, is altogether outside the Standing Order and, therefore, need not originate in a Committee of the Whole House July 13, 1324

The manuscript Amendment which the hon. Member has handed up, proposing to insert words in the clause, cannot be put, inasmuch as the Question, That the clause stand part of the Bill, has already been put from the Chair July 15, 1567

[Mr. SPEAKER withheld his assent, and declined then to put the Question, but reminded the hon. Member for Northampton that the question before the House was the present state of public business July 15, 1546]

The hon. Gentleman will not be in order in going into the general question of the relation between the Indian Government and the native princes. He must confine himself to the question of the deposition of the Maharaja July 21 [43] 291

The question is not as to the propriety of imposing fines, but as to whether they shall be binding on the workmen if enumerated in a particular notice and in particular circumstances July 27, 776

According to my recollection, there is nothing in the Bill about the powers of investment of trustees. This Amendment would appear to be more pertinent to a Trustee Investment Bill July 28 834

The next clause which stands upon the Paper, in the name of the hon. Baronet the Member for South Londonderry, as I understand it, is not in order, because it proposes to throw an additional burden upon the State. The clause appears to me to propose that where a tenant has, under previous Acts, borrowed any portion of the purchase money from persons other than the State, the Land Commissioners shall make such further advance as may be required to pay off such debt. That would be to throw an increased burden upon the State, and such a proposal is out of order upon the Report stage of the Bill July 28, 876

The hon. Member is not entitled to comment on the sentence inflicted by the judges July 30, 1136

Whether the conduct of the clergymen ought to be reprehended or not, I do not see how it is relevant July 30, 1137

With regard to the question of the hon. Member for North Louth, it is quite true that in all Committees the Chairman is the guardian of order, and decides all points which arise in Committee. But when there is an Instruction from the House, and the Bill comes back from the Committee with matters in it which are outside that Instruction, then the whole matter is before the House, and it would be my duty to give my opinion as to whether or not the clauses of the Bill did go beyond the Instruction. Therefore, the hon. Member for the Harbour Division is entitled to my opinion on that point. As to the first clause to which the hon. Member has taken objection: the Instruction with regard to the franchise was to inquire into the advisability of extending the municipal franchise to all Parliamentary voters except lodgers. That was the material part of the Instruction; and it only gives powers to extend the franchise. As far as I have been able to make myself acquainted with the Act, the hon. Member for the Harbour Division is right in saying that the present municipal franchise includes persons living within seven miles of the boundaries who occupy tenements within the city. That franchise has been taken away by the clause, which is clearly beyond the Instruction. To take away a franchise is a serious matter, which no Committee have a right to do unless authorised to do it by the nature of the Bill itself or by an Instruction. If it be by an Instruction it ought to be by an express Instruction, or at least one drawn in terms clearly wide enough to empower the Committee to take away that franchise. In this Instruction there was no authority given to disfranchise, and to the extent to which it does so the clause is beyond the powers of the Committee. As to the point upon Sections 19 and 20, the Instruction of the hon. Member for North Monaghan was: "That the Committee have power to make provision for an amendment of the law as to the election of aldermen, councillors, and assessors." Those are general words, and would, I think, include the power to give a minority vote. But then the point is taken that because the hon. Member for Londonderry put an Instruction on the Paper specifically referring to the minority vote, which was withdrawn, that the Committee could have no power to deal with the subject of minority representation under the instruction of the hon. Member for North Monaghan. I think that is not so. An Instruction brought forward and withdrawn is as if it had never existed. All that the

Speaker, or the Chairman of Committees, has to look to is the Instruction actually given to the Committee. With regard to Clause 23, the hon. Member for the Harbour Division is mistaken in supposing that the only offices which there was power for the Committee to deal with were offices held by officers annually elected by the Corporation. They were entitled, quite apart from those offices, to inquire into the election of assessors who are specifically named. But in that clause the Committee have also gone beyond their powers, because they have not only dealt with the offices of the assessors, but they have created two new officers—namely, two additional revising barristers—who are to be appointed by the Lord Lieutenant under the 20th & 21st Vict., chap 58. On referring to that Act I find that the powers of the Lord Lieutenant to appoint revising barristers are accompanied by the provision that their salaries are to be paid out of moneys to be voted by Parliament. It is quite clear that the Committee had no power to authorise the appointment of officers whose salaries are to be paid out of moneys to be voted by Parliament; and, therefore, that section is also out of order. Of course, the whole of the clauses from 15 to 26 are clauses which were put into the Bill only under the powers of these two Instructions; and the usual course where a Committee have only in part exceeded their Instructions, is to refer back to the Committee those parts of the Bill in which they have exceeded their Instructions. It is a matter entirely for the House and not for me, but I would suggest that, inasmuch as these sections from 15 to 26 form a code, as it were, the proper course would be to refer the whole of these sections back to the Committee to deal with them, because it is impossible for the House to know exactly how far the Committee were influenced in framing one section by the form which they have adopted for other sections. That would seem to be the most reasonable course July 31, 1235

I have not yet seen any question of privilege. The Select Committee when appointed have a right to fix their own time, unless this House makes an Order to the contrary. It may be a matter of complaint, but it cannot be a question of privilege, that the Committee have appointed a day which is said to be inconvenient to the parties Aug 1, 1317

As far as I can see, nothing has been done contrary to any Rules of the House. The convenience of the parties is a matter for the Chairman of Committees Aug 1, 1318

It seems to me that what the hon. and learned Member proposes would be something extending the Instruction which stands in the name of the hon. Member for Cork. An Amendment by way of extension would be out of Order. I would suggest to the hon. and learned Member whether Instruction No. 6, which stands in the name of the hon. Member for the Harbour Division, might not be utilised by him by way of Amendment. That Instruction proposes to admit the evidence given before the former Committee, and that it be an Instruction to the Committee to take no further evidence as to Parts 1, 2, and 4 of the Bill, thus leaving No. 3 untouched, and the Committee entirely at large. Therefore it would be in order for the hon. Member to move as an Amendment to that Instruction some Instruction limiting the authority of the Committee to deal with Part 3, which was not touched Aug 3, 1331

It is not competent for the hon. Member to move any clause on Report which would have required an Instruction if it were to be considered in Committee. This clause would certainly have required an Instruction. For the same reason the following clause, in the name of the hon. Member for the College Green Division (Mr. Carew), is out of order Aug 6, 1652

The Council, as I understand it, nominates three persons, and out of those three persons the Lord Lieutenant appoints one to fill the office of High Sheriff. The High Sheriff appoints the Sub-Sheriff, and the question is whether the Sub-Sheriff is a person appointed by the Corporation. It seems to me that the Sheriff is not a person appointed by the Corporation within the meaning of the Instruction, and therefore the Committee in dealing with the office of Sub-Sheriff have exceeded their powers under the Instruction Aug 6, 1676

It is quite out of order for an hon. Member to read out a number of extracts from Blue-books and ask a Minister whether he is aware of the facts contained in them Aug 7 [44] 112

The Report is made from the Committee that they have dealt with certain matters in a certain order, and in that order the Votes are brought before the House. The House may, of course, postpone the consideration of any Resolution at its pleasure Aug 11, 500

The hon. Member cannot move to add a 16th member without first carrying a Motion that the number of members of the Committee should be 16. I cannot allow a Motion that the number should be 16, because I took the decision of the House against 17 as being substantially a decision in favour of 15. If I allowed a motion to increase the number to 16 I would have to allow one in favour of 18, 19, or any other number. Therefore, if

the hon. Member wishes to propose a certain name, his only course is to move to leave out some name already suggested Aug 11, 574

I think the hon. Member would not be in order in moving the Amendment on the Paper. It opens up a general question which does not appear to be consequential to any Amendment by the Lords. Subsection 1 has been struck out and practically re-enacted with certain alterations; out of some 23 or 24 lines there are alterations in five or six lines only. The greater part, therefore, of what has come down as an Amendment is really what both Houses have agreed upon, and in that part there can be no Amendment moved. This is an Amendment to a part to which both House have agreed Aug 12, 592

The hon. and learned Member is entitled to discuss what has been done in the other House, but not to debate the Debates which have taken place there Aug 12, 597

The proper motion will be to disagree with the Lords' Amendment; that will restore Clause 5, and then, after the restoration of the clause, the addition of the proviso may be moved Aug 12, 623

The hon. Member can only deal with the administrative policy of the Government upon this question Aug 12, 663

The hon. and learned Member is now going into a matter which may be more properly discussed if and when this question is decided in the affirmative, and when the question of the Lords' Amendment is before the House striking out Part III. The only question now is whether the Lords' Amendment should be considered. Since the hon. Member referred to the Standing Orders I have made inquiry, and I find that, though the words "the Standing Order be suspended" were necessary at the time this Motion was set down, they are unnecessary now, and I shall therefore not put them to the House Aug 13, 718

The hon. Member is not keeping to the question before the House, which is that these Amendments be now considered Aug 13, 719

The hon. Member is entitled to argue that the Bill is in the main a Water Bill, and that it is important that the water clauses should be passed, and that opposition would result in destroying the Bill, but he is not entitled to pursue the line of argument upon which he is entering Aug 13, 721

To argue the point will be out of order. It is not competent for the hon. Member to initiate a discussion as to the constitution of the Water Companies Aug 13, 721
